

Remodel of a 1950's Al Beadle designed residence on the Paradise Valley Golf Course. The major components of the hardscape design included a new negative-edge swimming pool with concrete decking that matched the 10 foot square module repeated throughout the original design. The pool security fence was constructed of vertical rusted steel pipe to blend into the desert landscape and minimize distraction from surrounding mountain views. A new autocourt area was created using the same modular layout to soften the transition between old and new. Selected plant materials were thinned or removed. The existing palette was updated and complimented by the addition of new specimens emphasizing sculptural forms and seasonal color intended to energize the landscape while complimenting the new hardscape design.

Client
Wolff

Location
Paradise Valley, Arizona

Design Team
Floor Associates

Size
1 Acre

Services
Landscape Architecture

Budget
$200,000

Completion
January 2007

Recognition
2008 AZ ASLA
-Honor Award

2008 Sunset Magazine
-Award of Excellence

